I'm Amin, Backend developer. I've gathered experience in programming logic from my background, which led me toward my interest - something that I'm very passionate about! I am a hard-working, hands-on developer who understands both functional and object-oriented programming. As back-end developer, I'm using this knowledge together with my creativity and problem-solving skills to build great Systems. I like clean code and prefer to create functional, reusable, and scalable code for modern web applications. Being a fast learner and getting acquainted with modern frameworks and databases such as gin, postgres, .net core, Sql Server, MySQL in practice helped me a lot so far.

I am looking for new challenges and a suitable position with a forward-thinking company that offers a pleasant working and learning environment to continue to grow as a professional developer.
